Characters: Four (two female, one male, one either gender)

Narrator

Wife

Husband

Mother-in-law

Tone: Light

Synopsis: A narrated mime, a young couple enter marriage with a fairy tale-like attitude. However, when the pressures of life begin to set in, the marriage began to suffer.

Running Time: Two minutes

Set: None; however, a musical underscore (ala Disney/Snow White) would be appropriate. Other musical cues given are optional.

Props:

Optional:

Wedding bouquet/veil

Stick horse

Toy sword

Doll carriage with seven baby dolls

NARRATOR

Once upon a time, in a land far away. (harp glissando) (enter wife) there lived a fair young maiden. The fair young maiden did absolutely nothing all day long except to sit by a wishing well and wish and wish that her one true love would come to her. (music: high soprano singing slow, ala Snow White) It was a tough job, but somebody had to do it.

NARRATOR

Once upon a time, in a land far away. (harp glissando) (enter wife) there lived a fair young maiden. The fair young maiden did absolutely nothing all day long except to sit by a wishing well and wish and wish for her one true love...wait a minute...isn't this a rerun? (wife nods yes) Mind if I fast forward a little bit? (wife shrugs)
(The following is a fast forward version of Part 1, same props, same music; husband and wife run around furiously bringing props, etc. off and on)
